-- The MAILING DATE of this communication appears on the cover sheet with the correspondence address --

Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If the period for reply specified above is less than thirty (30) days, a reply within the statutory minimum of thirty (30) days will be considered timely.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Claims 17-20 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected Group II, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on 4/4/05.

Drawings

2. The drawings are objected to as failing to comply with 37 CFR 1.84(p)(5) because they do not include the following reference sign(s) mentioned in the description: 83 (mentioned on page 8). Corrected drawing sheets in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. Any amended replacement drawing sheet should include all of the figures appearing on the immediate prior version of the sheet, even if only one figure is being amended. Each drawing sheet submitted after the filing date of an application must be labeled in the top margin as either "Replacement Sheet" or "New Sheet" pursuant to 37 CFR 1.121(d). If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claim Objections

3. Claims 2-8, 11-13 are objected to because of the following informalities: claim 2, lines 1 and 2, the limitation "The replacement outlet component" lacks antecedent basis in the claim; claim 5, line 3, the limitation "the power cord retaining device" lacks antecedent basis in the claim; claim 6, line 1, the limitation "The power cord retaining device" lacks antecedent basis in the claim; claim 6, line 2, the limitation "the power cord-retaining device" lacks antecedent basis in the claim; claim 13, line 3, the limitation "the power cord-retaining device" lacks antecedent basis in the claim; claim 13, line 2, the limitation "the power cord" lacks antecedent basis in the claim. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 1, 2, 6-8, 11-14, 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Rust (6,428,333).

In regard to claim 1, Rust discloses an electrical cord securing device comprising: a replacement outlet cover 12; a plug retainer 22 that surrounds at least a portion of an electrical cord 64 where the plug retainer 22 is installed in the replacement outlet cover 12 by pushing the plug retainer 22 into the replacement outlet cover 12.

In regard to claim 2, Rust discloses that the replacement outlet component 12 has holes 16 placed on opposing sides of each outlet 14.

In regard to claim 6, Rust discloses that the plug retainer 22 has tabs 32 located on the sides of the power cord-retaining device 22.

In regard to claim 7, Rust discloses that the tabs 32 are rectangular (see fig. 5).

In regard to claim 8, Rust discloses that the tabs 32 include detents that require the user to press the sides of the plug retainer 22 down and inward to release the plug retainer 22 from the replacement outlet cover 12.

In regard to claim 11, Rust discloses that the tabs 32 are shaped such that the plug retainer 22 cannot be collapsed.

In regard to claim 12, Rust discloses that the tabs 32 further include raised, surface located on the sides of the tabs 32.

In regard to claim 13, Rust discloses that at least one spacer 48 that can be used to further secure the power cord 64 within the power cord-retaining component 22 (see column 3, lines 55-64).

In regard to claim 14, Rust discloses a method of retaining an electrical cord 64 in an electrical outlet 14, the method comprising: placing an electrical cord 64 through a slot 48 in a plug retainer 22; inserting the plug 60 into an electrical outlet 14; pressing the plug retainer 22 into a replacement electrical outlet cover 12 until tabs 32 located on at least one side of the plug retainer 22 spread and lock into the replacement outlet cover 12.

In regard to claim 16, Rust discloses a spacer (adjacent 48) to fill improve retention of the plug 60 in an electrical outlet 14 (see column 3, lines 55-64).

6. Claims 1, 6, 9, 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Cross et al. (5,655,924).

In regard to claim 1, Cross et al. discloses an electrical cord securing device comprising: a replacement outlet cover 14; a plug retainer 15 that surrounds at least a portion of an electrical cord 12 where the plug retainer 15 is installed in the replacement outlet cover 14 by pushing the plug retainer 15 into the replacement outlet cover 14.

In regard to claim 6, Cross et al. discloses that the plug retainer 15 has tabs 32 located on the sides of the power cord-retaining device 15.

In regard to claim 9, Cross et al. discloses that the plug retainer 15 includes a slot 29 where a power cord 12 can be placed through the slot 29.

In regard to claim 10, Cross et al. discloses that the slot 29 is capable of retaining the power cord 12.

Art Unit: 2833

7. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

8. Claims 1, 2, 4, 5-8, 11, 12, 14, 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by McDevitt, Jr. (6,769,930).

In regard to claim 1, McDevitt, Jr. discloses an electrical cord securing device comprising: a replacement outlet cover 11; a plug retainer 30 that surrounds at least a portion of an electrical cord 101 where the plug retainer 30 is installed in the replacement outlet cover 11 by pushing the plug retainer 30 into the replacement outlet cover 11.

In regard to claim 2, McDevitt, Jr. discloses that the replacement outlet component 11 has holes 23 placed on opposing sides of each outlet 50.

In regard to claim 4, McDevitt, Jr. discloses that the holes 23 are rectangular.

In regard to claim 5, McDevitt, Jr. discloses that a raised area 24 located on the back side of the holes 23 that require the user to press the plug retainer 30 into the outlet 50 before the power cord retaining device 30 can be removed.

In regard to claim 6, McDevitt, Jr. discloses that the plug retainer 30 has tabs 31 located on the sides of the power cord-retaining device 30.

In regard to claim 7, McDevitt, Jr. discloses that the tabs 31 are rectangular (see attached drawing).

In regard to claim 8, McDevitt, Jr. discloses that the tabs 31 include detents 33 that require the user to press the sides of the plug retainer 30 down and inward to release the plug retainer 30 from the replacement outlet cover 11.

In regard to claim 11, McDevitt, Jr. discloses that the tabs 31 are shaped such that the plug retainer 30 cannot be collapsed.

In regard to claim 12, McDevitt, Jr. discloses that the tabs 31 further include raised, lowered or textured surface 33 located on the sides of the tabs 31.

In regard to claim 14, McDevitt, Jr. discloses a method of retaining an electrical cord 101 in an electrical outlet 50, the method comprising: placing an electrical cord 101 through a slot (between 37 and 39) in a plug retainer 30; inserting the plug 100 into an electrical outlet 50; pressing the plug retainer 30 into a replacement electrical outlet cover 11 until tabs 31 located on at least one side of the plug retainer 30 spread and lock into the replacement outlet cover 11.

In regard to claim 15, McDevitt, Jr. discloses that the removal of the plug retainer 30 from the electrical outlet cover 11 requires the user first press the plug retainer 30 into the electrical outlet cover 11 then depress at least one tab 31 before removing the plug retainer 30.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

9. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

10. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rust in view of Chou (5,997,318).

Rust does not disclose that the holes 16 in the replacement outlet cover 12 includes a louver tab to prevent objects from being placed through the inside of the holes 16.

Chou discloses (in attached fig. 1) that the holes 12 in the outlet cover 1 includes a louver tab (see attached drawing) to prevent objects from being placed through the inside of the holes 12.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Rust's invention by constructing the hole with a louver as disclosed by Chou in order to prevent foreign debris from entering the hole.
